PA Board of Probation and Parole Launches Facebook and Twitter

HARRISBURG – The Pennsylvania Board of Probation and Parole today announced the official launch of its social media presence on Facebook and Twitter as an additional channel of communication for the public to follow the board’s activities, related news and events.

“The way we communicate has changed greatly over the past several years and social media is certainly a great way to directly connect with the people we serve across Pennsylvania,” said PA Probation and Parole Chairman Leo L. Dunn. “Facebook and Twitter will provide an accessible and efficient communication tool to enable timely and useful sharing of news and events directly from the board,” Dunn added.

Follow the PBPP on Twitter at @PaParole and like us on Facebook at Facebook.com/PaBoardProbationParole. The PBPP Facebook page will be updated regularly and will feature announcements, events, important updates, and other information of interest to our stakeholders.
